HAVE YOU EVER MET A FELLOW THETA JUST BY CHANCE? Maybe you sat next to her at an airport or a café, and one thing or another revealed your connection in Kappa Alpha Theta. For those few moments, your bond in Theta brought you together.

THETA IS NOT ABOUT BLACK AND GOLD PANSIES. It is not about kites or letter T-shirts or catchy songs. Theta is made up of people and experiences—of stories—and those stories are what connect us to one another.

WHAT IS THE THETA MEMORY THAT MEANS THE MOST TO YOU? How long has it been since you thought about that moment or the people in it? Share that story with us. Take a moment to remember why you are a Theta, and perhaps your story will make others remember just why they are, too.

YOUR THETA MAGAZINE

BY LIZ APPEL RINCK, Γ/BUTLER, EDITOR

AS HISTORY-MINDED THETAS KNOW, THE FIRST ISSUE OF THE THETA MAGAZINE WAS PUBLISHED IN 1885. EVEN IN THE BEGINNING, IT WAS UNDERSTOOD THAT A SUCCESSFUL MAGAZINE WAS NOT INEXPENSIVE AND THAT SOME MEANS OF PAYING FOR PRINTING AND POSTAGE MUST BE FOUND.

So delegates to the same Grand Convention at which a Fraternity publication was established also voted to tax each member 50 cents per year to fund magazine expenses. Twenty-eight years later, delegates to the 1913 Convention discussed an endowment fund as a more permanent method of financing the magazine, and, at Grand Convention 1937, that endowment was established. In accordance with the Tax Reform Act of 1969, however, this fund was subsequently combined with other funds, and—for as long as many of us can remember—the Kappa Alpha Theta Magazine has arrived in Thetas' mailboxes free of charge.

In these challenging economic times, your editor is proud to write that, despite ever-increasing postage and paper costs, the budget for the Theta magazine has remained substantially the same over the past decade. There's a fine line that we walked, however, between economics and craftsmanship, and it's difficult to pursue both high quality and low expenses when producing one of our primary communications vehicles.

Perhaps you are wondering, dear reader, how our magazine is currently funded, and we expect you will be surprised to learn that the burden falls mainly on the shoulders of our collegians! Their dues support a publication that is enjoyed primarily by alumnae, instead of supporting programs that more directly affect them—programs that are vital to continuing our prominence on college campuses.

Several years ago, Grand Council carefully researched and thoughtfully considered the most equitable, sustainable plan to fund our magazine as well as support our college chapters. It was not without mixed emotions that they decided to ask those alumnae members who enjoy receiving and reading the magazine to pay for it. Accordingly a new distribution plan (diagram below) was put into place in the summer of 2010.

The new plan means that college members, Theta Life Loyal members (Please see page 20 for more information on our Life Loyal program.), and alumnae who pay dues through an alumnae chapter, alumnae circle, or directly to the Fraternity will receive all four printed issues of our magazine each year. Although those members not in the above groups will gradually cease to receive the printed publication, the online version, which comprises all the features of the printed version, will always be available to every Theta.

This new distribution plan is not intended to make money for the Fraternity! Rather, it will allow the Fraternity to use its financial resources efficiently and to be a good steward of member dues.

As your editor and a big fan of the printed word, I hope you value and want to continue to receive the hardcopy version of the Theta magazine. As an alumna who values her ongoing Fraternity connections, I hope you will consider all your options and remain involved, whether by joining an alumnae group, paying Fraternity dues, enrolling in Theta Life Loyal, frequently visiting www.kappalphatheta.org, attending Founders Day events, or organizing chapter reunions. ♦

Notice: Because Kappa Alpha Theta is not an officially recognized student group at Harvard or Santa Clara University, these schools prohibit using "Harvard" or "Santa Clara" in any published reference to our Zeta Xi or Eta Lambda Chapter.

We regret the following errors in the Summer 2011 issue. Page 11, members of the 1954 new member class at Beta/Indiana were misidentified; page 23, there have been four female Supreme Court justices; page 26, Shannon Hayes's name was omitted from Epsilon Pi/Bucknell's list of academic achievers.

I AM A THETA

Why are you a Theta? It's a heavy question. Maybe it's because of a woman you met during recruitment. Maybe it was an experience that took place after recruitment, after your college years. What (or who) has made you the Theta you are today?

Theta is not about black and gold pansies. It is not about kites or letter T-shirts or catchy songs. Theta is made up of people and experiences—of stories—and those stories are what connects us to one another.

You may have just joined Theta this year, or you could be a 75-year member ... but you have a story. The new I Am a Theta area of www.kappaalphatheta.org provides a place for Thetas to share their stories of lifetime membership, the emotions and bonds that form the basis of our sisterhood, and their connection to the Fraternity. Under the I Am a Theta tab, you'll be able to read stories recounted by individual Thetas, and you'll also be able to share your own stories, even illustrate them by uploading a photograph or a video.

Log into the Theta website and choose the I Am a Theta tab. Share your story with us. And learn more about our Fraternity by reading stories submitted by your Theta sisters.

CONGRESSIONAL VISIT DAY

In April, 101 Panhellenic women traveled to Capitol Hill to visit with members of Congress and lobby for passage of the Collegiate Housing and Infrastructure Act. The group included 58 alumnae and 43 students.

Known as CHIA, the act would result in safer student housing by encouraging charitable contributions to collegiate housing owned by nonprofit entities for installation of lifesaving equipment such as fire sprinklers, smoke detectors and alarm systems.

For more information on CHIA, go to <http://housing.kappaalphatheta.org>. See picture below.

A NOTE ABOUT THE FRIENDSHIP FUND

The birth of the Friendship Fund may be traced to the 1924 Grand Convention, when a young alumna, Rachel Sumner Poole, Chi/Syracuse, spoke of a Theta in dire need and asked if there was any fund from which the Fraternity could aid her. In response, a committee was formed and recommended the establishment of the Friendship Fund at the 1926 Convention. An important ongoing tradition is the secrecy surrounding the giving of gifts from the fund. Two members write on behalf of a sister, and the Friendship Fund committee determines the award amount. The requesters remain anonymous, and all records are confidential.

Friendship Fund gifts fulfill a promise to serve and care for our sisters who are experiencing catastrophic illness, natural disaster, financial distress, or urgent family crisis. By contributing to this fund, Thetas strengthen our bonds of sisterhood and demonstrate loving compassion. Beginning on July 1, administration of the Friendship Fund returned to the Fraternity from Theta Foundation. For more information about making or receiving a Friendship Fund gift, go to www.kappaalphatheta.org/friendshipfund or call 800.KAO.1870.

101 YEARS YOUNG

Georgia Stripp Rowe, Alpha Nu/Montana, epitomizes the fact that Theta is for a lifetime. Although we have been friends for a number of years, I did not learn until last fall that we are Theta sisters. She had invited my husband and me for lunch at her home (where she lives independently) as a continuation of her 100th birthday celebration last August. She delighted us with stories from her life as she showed us photo montages that her family had created.

She spoke with particular pride as she pointed to a number of photos of her with groups of young college women whom she met through what she termed her "sorority work." There was such a joy in her voice as she brought those memories back to life ... I just could not resist asking the name of her sorority.

Imagine my delight when she replied, "Theta." She beamed when I said, "I'm a Theta, too."

She entertained me with stories of Grand Convention in Toronto which she, then treasurer of the Alpha Nu Chapter, attended. After college, Theta continued to be a big part of her life as she and her husband, Tom, made their home on a number of college campuses. The Thetas were always an immediate circle of friends to welcome them.

With Tom busy with his duties as dean of the college of pharmacy at the University of Michigan, Georgia could devote time to Theta and her sisters. However, she did not limit herself to just one campus. The photos she shared with me so many years later captured memories from her service as a District I officer.

As Georgia regaled me with stories of Grand Convention on Mackinaw Island, the telephone rang. It was a Theta sister calling to arrange to pick Georgia up for a Theta gathering later in the week.

At 100, Georgia continues her active involvement with Theta as she amazes and inspires all who know her. Hers has truly been a lifetime of giving to and benefiting from being a Kappa Alpha Theta.

IN MEMORIAM

Audrey Marie Kemp Thompson, Beta Lambda/William & Mary, was an amazing person, and she is truly missed! She passed away just shy of her 91st birthday—two months to the day.

Of the many life experiences she was so blessed to have enjoyed and experienced, her time at William and Mary and her affiliation with Kappa Alpha Theta were among her most cherished. As the wife of a career Air Force officer, and the mother of three children, she made friends around the world and across the country as a result of her Theta ties and spoke often and with great fondness of those years and those friendships.

On behalf of my mom and to Thetas and their legacy, I thank you for all you stand for and all you continue to do make a positive contribution to the lives of young women everywhere. Continued best wishes for all of the good works.

LOIS THOMPSON KASTNER

As a 1967 initiate of the Alpha Chapter at DePauw, I truly enjoy each issue of the Theta magazine, especially the wonderful section on reunions and get-togethers. Invariably, I always finish by reading line by line the In Memoriam page.

In the Spring 2011 issue, my eye passed over the notice of the death of Wilma Wagenvoort Ferguson Cross in December 2010, a 1933 initiate at Michigan State University. But my memory was jogged by the name and I returned to the item. In checking old family documents, I discovered that in August 1940 Wilma and her husband, Cliff Ferguson, stood up for my parents at their wedding in Toledo, Ohio. We lived near the Fergusons in Dearborn, Mich., for years and spent many pleasant social occasions together.

I never realized where or how their friendship started. It turns out that my mother, Helen Eberts Keppen, was also a 1933 initiate at Michigan State University. The bonds of sisterhood never really disappear! The Theta magazine is yet another way to keep these bonds alive. Sadly, my mother died in 1991, and I am so fortunate to have her 50-year pansy pin. My condolences, along with many happy memories, go to Wilma's son Cliff and her daughter Patricia.

WOMAN OF TRUE PROMISE

Just a quick note to tell you how much I enjoyed the True Promise feature on Agnes DeMille (Spring 2011). As a dancer myself, and a dance student in college, I remember learning about her many contributions to the world of dance. And I was, of course, delighted to learn at the time that she was a Theta too. It was fun to see her story in The Magazine ... thanks for including her!

FOUNDATION SUPPORT

I was struck by the headline on page 30 of the Spring 2011 issue. It read: "Only Five Percent of Thetas Give! [to Theta Foundation]" What if every initiated Theta gave a small contribution every year? All too often I think people feel they must give sizeable amounts to make their gift worthwhile.

As a friend of the late Hazel Baird Lease, who helped start Theta Foundation, I well remember her idea. It was that if all Thetas participated, collectively we could make a world of difference.

My philosophy is somewhat like Hazel's. I would like to see every Theta give something every year. It need not be big—$10, $25—whatever one feels she can afford. Just think how that would add up! I do not want to discourage the hundreds of Thetas who give sizeable amounts; that is wonderful. But for the thousands of others (95 percent!) who do not contribute, their checks, be they small or large, would add up to an incredible amount.

On July 21, 1909, the Alpha Xi Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta was installed with a college membership of 14, along with 10 graduates. Forty women celebrated Kappa Alpha Theta's 40th chapter with dinner, toasts, and songs lasting so far into the evening that alumnae joked of the generous tips they had to give their taxi drivers for the late rides home!

It is with just as much excitement that Kappa Alpha Theta anticipates the return of the Alpha Xi Chapter to the University of Oregon. We look forward to joining nine National Panhellenic Conference groups—Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Phi, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Gamma, Gamma Phi Beta, Kappa Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Pi Beta Phi—on campus.

The Fraternity is proud of Alpha Xi's long history and is excited to see what great accomplishments the future holds for her newest members. If you are a Theta in the Eugene area, you may be contacted to assist in the colonization and installation process.

TERRA ZVARA A THETA OF NOTE

TERRA ZVARA, EPSILON LAMBDA/DICKINSON, RECENTLY RETURNED FROM A DEPLOYMENT TO BAGRAM AIR FIELD IN AFGHANISTAN AS AN ASSISTANT STATION MANAGER WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS, SERVICE TO THE ARMED FORCES PROGRAM. THEIR MAIN MISSION IS TO DELIVER EMERGENCY MESSAGES FROM FAMILIES TO US SOLDIERS. THEY ALSO PROVIDE MORALE ACTIVITIES, VISIT SERVICE MEMBERS IN THE HOSPITAL, AND OFTEN VOLUNTEER TO ASSIST IN TRANSPORTING SERVICE MEMBERS FOR MED EVAC FLIGHTS.

PLEASE TELL US SOMETHING ABOUT THE RED CROSS THAT WE PROBABLY DON'T KNOW.

While the American Red Cross is well-known for their blood donor program and for responding to disasters, many people forget that the organization was founded on providing comfort and care to the members of the US military. SAF personnel are on site at deployed locations, such as Afghanistan, Iraq, and Kuwait, and work 24 hours a day, seven days a week to locate the service member's command and deliver the messages.

WHAT IS THE BEST PART OF YOUR CURRENT JOB?

The best part of my current job is the women I work with (our entire team is women on this deployment) and interacting with service members. In addition, because I work in a deployed location I feel that I am getting to see and experience something that very few Americans get to do.

WHAT IS THE WORST PART?

The worst part is knowing that the news in many of the emergency messages you have delivered to the service member's command, on behalf of the family, is about to change that service member's life forever.

WHAT IS YOUR PROUDEST ACCOMPLISHMENT?

Changing careers. A former mentor used to ask me, "What would you do if you did not get paid?" After a lot of reflection and research, I feel very lucky to have the answer: work with the military and their families.

LOOKING AT YOU, NO ONE WOULD GUESS THAT...

I am a little obsessed with the Transformers movies.

WHO ARE YOUR REAL-LIFE HEROES?

Blanche L. Scott is one of my real-life heroes. The following is a paraphrase of her obituary that ran in the Washington Post. "Miss Scott enlisted in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps in 1942 and rose to the rank of major. After the Korean War, the military sharply reduced its numbers, forcing Scott out of her career and the life she had known for more than 10 years. Scott found a way to continue working and to retain her military benefits: She started over at the bottom.

"Reenlisting as a 39-year-old private, she went back to work at the same personnel office where she had been a senior officer. At the same time, she joined the Army Reserve, where she kept her rank as a major. After 10 years, she retired simultaneously as a sergeant first class in the regular Army and as a major in the Reserve."

WHAT DO YOU VALUE IN YOUR FRIENDS?

Loyalty, a sense of humor, and I am always impressed by their dedication to reaching their dreams.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE THETA MEMORY?

I have so many memories of Theta, but I think my favorite memories are the quiet ones. Those times when we would all be in a circle during the end of the meeting or similar event and you could see everyone together, just still, in that moment. Now that we are older, I look back on those memories and those younger faces with a lot of fondness for where we have been and how I have seen those women grow. ♦

THIS FRATERNITY PROGRAM IS FINANCIALLY SUPPORTED BY KAPPA ALPHA THETA FOUNDATION.

GOOD GOVERNMENT NEEDS GREEKS!

For the past several years, fraternity and sorority leaders have been working together to build a positive presence in Washington, DC, to help protect the fraternal experience we offer to our members. The Fraternity and Sorority Political Action Committee (FSPAC) is a bipartisan organization that supports the election of federal candidates interested in preserving the fraternity and sorority experience for future generations of student leaders. Formed in March 2005, the FSPAC allows Greeks to work together to visibly support our brothers and sisters in Congress and those who champion Greek issues.

AN IMPORTANT ISSUE

One of the first goals was to address the IRS tax code affecting Greek chapter housing. Fraternities and sororities are the largest not-for-profit student landlord on many college campuses, other than the schools themselves, and many of our members have priceless memories of living in a chapter house while in college. A current quirk in the tax laws allows colleges and universities to use charitable contributions to build and maintain student housing, while preventing other not-for-profit student housing entities (including Kappa Alpha Theta) from doing the same thing. Currently, Theta Foundation is permitted by the tax code to fund only educational efforts with tax-deductible contributions, while gifts to the Fraternity are not tax-deductible at all. This is in contrast to colleges and universities, which may use any and all contributions for brick-and-mortar improvements to their campus housing.

As a landlord of student housing, all fraternities and sororities are concerned about the condition and safety of their chapter facilities. A change in the tax code would go a long way toward helping Greek organizations address the safety of current resident chapter members.

Kappa Alpha Theta mandated (and provided financing for) the installation of fire-sprinkler systems in all Fraternity-owned facilities more than 10 years ago. Yet many other Greek groups do not have the luxury of offering financial support for fire-safety initiatives, and, in fact, Theta facilities will continue to require future safety-oriented and structural repairs.

WHAT'S BEING DONE

To change federal law so that gifts can be made to Greek foundations for housing corporations to create higher-quality, safer, and more academic-centered student living for their members, Greek leaders from the National Panhellenic Conference (NPC) and the North-American Interfraternity Conference (NIC) came together to develop new legislation, the Collegiate and Housing and Infrastructure Act (CHIA). It was introduced into Congress in 2003 by then-House Budget Committee Chairman Paul Ryan, Delta Tau Delta. The collective leadership of NIC, NPC, and FSPAC has been actively pushing for support and ultimate passage of this important legislation.

NOT IF, BUT WHEN

Support for CHIA is growing because fraternity and sorority leaders continue to lobby legislators and push for its passage as a common-sense way to provide safe and affordable student housing for tomorrow's leaders. (For more on how Theta participates in these lobbying efforts, see page 4.) CHIA was reintroduced in the 112th Congress and leaders are optimistic it will eventually secure the support needed to pass the bill in this session, as long as all fraternities and sororities are persistent in their outreach efforts.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

If you're interested in helping to ensure a fairer tax policy that will make a real difference in the lives of our future student members or in educating yourself about CHIA and other efforts by FSPAC, visit www.fspac.org.

"In just a short period of time, the FSPAC—the largest higher-education political action committee in the US—has given the Greek community a year-round voice in Washington," says Cindy Heine Stellinghorn, Beta/Indiana, president-elect of FSPAC. "The Greek community is determined to push for support of legislation that helps improve the experience of our members."

If you'd like more information about Theta's support of the Fraternity & Sorority Political Action Committee, contact Laurie McGregor Connor, Gamma deuteran/Ohio Wesleyan, director of government relations, Laurieowu77@gmail.com.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA'S TRUE PROMISE IS A VOW, A TWO-WAY PLEDGE BETWEEN THE FRATERNITY AND EACH OF HER MEMBERS. IT IS UP TO EACH THETA TO DISCOVER AND FULFILL THE PROMISE WITHIN HERSELF. SO, TOO, IT IS UP TO EACH THETA TO DETERMINE WHAT THE FRATERNITY WILL MEAN TO HER AND HOW HER MEMBERSHIP WILL CONTRIBUTE TO HER LIFE.

HOW WILL YOU LIVE OUT YOUR TRUE PROMISE?

MARLO THOMAS O/USC,
IS A KAPPA ALPHA THETA WOMAN OF TRUE PROMISE.

In 1966, a controversial new television sitcom hit the air. The show, That Girl, featured Ann Marie, a young woman who shunned society's conventions by moving to New York City to become an actress. It was the first sitcom to feature a single, career-focused woman who lived on her own.

The show was conceived by Marlo Thomas, O/USC, who was also executive producer and played the lead role. She initially had a hard time selling the concept to the major networks, even with industry credit and a well-known father, entertainer and comedian Danny Thomas. The show featured radical subject matter and a liberated female lead that scared many of the (mostly male) television executives.

Eventually ABC took on the project, and That Girl ran for five seasons, earning Thomas four Emmy nominations and a Golden Globe. It changed television history, inspired a new generation of independent women, and brought feminism into the mainstream. And as a result, Thomas became a major voice in the women's movement.

She became close friends with Gloria Steinem, with whom she co-founded the Ms. Foundation for Women, a nonprofit that provides funding and resources to organizations supporting women's rights. She also created the award-winning book and multi-media project Free to be ... You and Me, which promoted gender equality, tolerance, and personal acceptance.

Today, Thomas is still an actress; she'll be appearing alongside Demi Moore and Miley Cyrus this year in the film LOL. She is still an author; she released Growing Up Laughing last year and is now the editor-at-large and anchor of the women's page on The Huffington Post. But perhaps most importantly, she is still an activist, speaking up not just for women, but for all those who need a voice. She is national outreach director for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital—an organization her father founded in 1962—using her fame and celebrity friends to bring awareness and funding to children with cancer.

When Bettie Locke founded Kappa Alpha Theta, she wanted to create a support group for women, to help them find a place in a man's world. She wanted members to find strength within themselves to stand up for what is right, even when it isn't popular or easy. And, although they were born generations apart, Marlo Thomas has committed herself to that same True Promise. How will you live your True Promise? ♦

There were millions of That Girls in homes across America. We were not our mother's daughters. We were a whole different breed."

HEART OF THE MATTER

AS COORDINATOR OF THE GREAT APE HEART PROJECT, PRIMATOLOGIST DR. MARIETTA DINDO FACILITATES AN EXTENSIVE TEAM FOCUSED ON FIGHTING CARDIAC DISEASE, TOP KILLER OF THE WORLD'S ENDANGERED "GENTLE GIANTS."

By Jan Schmitz Mathew, Δ/Illinois

Throughout her own evolutionary process, many developments pointed Marietta Dindo, Delta Zeta/Emory, in the direction of primates.

First, her nickname: an avid gymnast as a child growing up in New York City, Dindo's antics and high energy level earned her the family pet name, "monkey."

As a teenager, she recalls being captivated by Gorillas in the Mist, the 1988 film based on the life story of naturalist Dian Fossey and her work in Rwanda with mountain gorillas. The movie prompted Dindo to read volumes about Fossey, and the more she learned, the more this extraordinary woman's career inspired Dindo to become a field researcher.

The spark led her to Emory University in Atlanta, where as a Theta new member, she learned of another providential connection to Fossey, who was a member of the Gamma Xi Chapter at San Jose State.

Dindo graduated from Emory with a bachelor of science degree in anthropology. She credits her advisor, Frans de Waal, a Dutch primatologist and author of Chimpanzee Politics—a book Newt Gingrich gives to legislators new to Capitol Hill—with honing her focus on primatology. She received her PhD in evolutionary psychology from the University of St. Andrews in Scotland.

“Throughout three years of graduate school, I only lived in any one place for six months at a time,” Dindo recalls. Research destinations ranged from Brazil to study capuchin monkeys in the wild to Madagascar, Brazil, and France.

Post-doctoral work included research at the Yerkes National Primate Center, Emory; Smithsonian’s National Zoological Park, Washington DC; and Zoo Atlanta, which Dindo describes as “a researcher’s dream.”

She joined the Zoo Atlanta staff as a full-time employee of the great Ape Heart Project in 2010 and it was there—at an organization that houses the nation’s largest collection of western lowland gorillas—that Dindo embraced a reality she could only imagine at age 15.

In 2011, she was hired as digital archivist for the Dian Fossey Gorilla Fund International, based at Zoo Atlanta.

“I have access to everything that was at Dian’s research site—her clothes, furniture, books,” says Dindo. “Her original notebooks were typewritten. There’s forty years of longitudinal data on gorillas, but no way to pull out specifics. It was important to the Zoo to hire a primatologist to study the notes and categorize data.

“Dian Fossey has always been a role model to me in terms of someone who was passionate about what she did—protecting animals and getting research and information out to the public.”

HEALTHY HEARTS

In August 2010, Dindo also was named coordinator of the Great Ape Heart Project (GAHP), with responsibilities that model Fossey’s passion for research, protection, and public awareness. This Zoo Atlanta-based project, which is the first collaborative effort of its type, addresses a critical need for understanding, diagnosing, and treating cardiovascular disease, the leading cause of mortality in adult male gorillas living in captive settings.

As coordinator, Dindo maintains a national cardiac database and facilitates communication among the project’s primary stakeholders—52 participants from 33 institutions, including veterinarians, cardiologists, geneticists, epidemiologists, nutritionists, animal managers, ape specialists, and research pathologists. The initiative is funded by a grant from the federal Institute of Museum and Library Services.

“We want to create the best level of care possible for captive apes, and more knowledge is key to better care,” says Dindo of the long-misunderstood veterinary field of great ape cardiac health. “Humans have a lot in common with great apes, genetically, behaviorally, and socially. And although our hearts are similar in size, too, apes’ measurements of ‘normal’ don’t align with humans—their heart rates are more hyper-dynamic.”

Reputed as a national leader in the husbandry, training, and behavioral research of this endangered species, Zoo Atlanta was the clear choice for project

I think we can gain a lot of perspective about our world by watching and studying animals. And with apes, what you give is what you get. If you show respect, you get respect — and if you want them to change their behavior, you modify yours.”

leadership. The Zoo houses 23 western lowland gorillas—the nation's largest collection—with four residents classified as geriatric, or over the age of 35: Shamba, 52; Ozzie, 50; Choomba, 50; and Ivan, 49.

Eight among the total pack are descendants of Willie B., Zoo Atlanta's most famous and beloved ape. This year marks the 50th anniversary of Willie B.'s arrival from Africa in May 1961. Despite rising to "celebrity" status among countless Atlantans, Willie B. lived alone in an indoor enclosure for 27 years prior to opening of the Zoo's Ford African Rain Forest in 1988. He quickly adjusted to life as a troop leader, and sired five offspring, all currently Zoo residents.

It was Willie B.'s death in 2000 from cardiovascular disease that helped spotlight the need for additional research in heart health.

"What I bring to the table as GAHP coordinator are organizational and communication skills and, in this position, I don't have a lot of direct contact with the great apes," Dindo says.

"But once you've worked with these charismatic animals, you want to help them any way you can."

Key to aiding the Zoo's gentle giants is accurate diagnoses. In 2009, Zoo Atlanta became the first zoological institution in the world to obtain voluntary blood pressure readings from a gorilla. The Gorilla Tough Cuff—created at the Zoo as a senior design project—is a durable, comfortable cuff large enough to accommodate an adult male gorilla weighing more than 300 pounds. And although gorillas typically resist putting their arms into inflatable cuffs, months of training and positive reinforcement convinced 50-year-old Ozzie, the cuff's first tester, to cooperate.

"If a gorilla pulls away from blood pressure apparatus, he can easily destroy an expensive piece of equipment," Dindo says. "So, before this breakthrough, gorillas were most often tested under anesthesia, which affected their blood pressure reading."

"It's much more accurate to test them when they're awake."

The new system also allows veterinarians to more effectively monitor precursory cardiac disease signs, such as high blood pressure.

THE WORLD ACCORDING TO APES . . .

Although committed to keeping healthy hearts beating strong, Dindo's research primarily has focused on studying the social lives of gorillas and orangutans.

"Apes definitely have social norms in terms of learning particular games or processing food," says Dindo, whose dissertation addressed learning and cultural traditions among groups. "How they access and consume hard-to-extract food items, for instance, is often unique to specific social groups in the wild."

She's also gathered data to support the adage, "monkey see, monkey do." With support from the National Science Foundation, Dindo is studying how our distant ape cousins watch and learn.

An experiment she conducted at Zoo Atlanta, for example, allowed her to observe a "transmission chain," the process by which information is passed along. She built a small plastic box with a small door, and attached it to the bars of the orangutans' cage. The contraption allowed them to slide or lift the door open and, regardless of which method the orangutans chose, they would always collect a treat. This meant the only motivation to conform to one method over the other was what an individual observed another orangutan doing.

In her study, Dindo found that equally matched orangutans were superb copycats and learned from each other. Results from other studies, she adds, show that even though they are masters at mimicking, apes will copy each other only when it serves their purposes—a departure from behavior typical of humans, who aren't nearly as selective.

"What we see with humans is that people want to do as others do," Dindo says. "This starts at a young age, around the same time we begin to identify ourselves with others."

Often, though, the lessons she learns from apes come simply from the joy of being in their company. "I think we can gain a lot of perspective about our world by watching and studying animals," Dindo says. "And with apes, what you give is what you get. If you show respect, you get respect—and if you want them to change their behavior, you modify yours."

"That's how I've learned to view the world."

And on any given day, glimpsing the habitat enjoyed by Zoo Atlanta's primate population reinforces the fact that Dindo is living her dream.

"We recently had a orangutan baby who came here from another zoo. He couldn't be reared by his mother, so one of our zoo's females served as foster mom. I came back late one night to give him a bottle and remembered that, as a teenager, that was always one of the coolest things I could imagine doing—having the key to a zoo and coming in at night to feed the apes!"

"I can't imagine wanting to be anyplace but here," Dindo adds. "I feel I'm making a difference in a work environment that supports my passion." ♦

GORILLA FACTS

Gorillas live between 30 and 40 years in the wild and up to 50 years in captivity.*

For more than 30 years, ongoing field research on mountain gorillas has made them the most-studied subspecies of gorilla. In 1967, Dian Fossey, $\Gamma\Xi$ /San Jose State, spearheaded the Karisoke Research Center in the Virunga Volcanoes.*

Adult male gorillas weigh up to 400 pounds in the wild and 500 pounds in captivity and measure, on average, five and one-half feet, while females weigh between 159 and 216 pounds and measure, on average, five feet.*

Caring for captive gorillas requires a cooperative team of veterinarians, animal care staff, nutritionists, and researchers.

The film Gorillas in the Mist, based on Dian Fossey's life, was nominated for five Academy Awards.

While the language and the manner of identifying new members has changed over the years, the purpose has always remained the same: seeking women of high potential to share the bonds of sisterhood.

The earliest recruitment was often done on a one-to-one basis, where a young woman of high academic standards was offered membership in Theta and initiated soon after. As other Greek groups joined Kappa Alpha Theta on campuses and the number of potential new members increased, recruitment efforts changed to meet those needs.

As Thetas return to campuses and begin the 2011-2012 recruitment season, we selected just a few of the items from the many found in the Kappa Alpha Theta archives that reflect our long history of recruitment efforts.

Are You Missing Something?

Some lost items are more valuable than others!

Are you missing the support and friendship of Theta sisterhood?

Reconnecting with the Fraternity through an alumnae chapter or circle is easy. To locate contact information for your local group, log into www.kappaalphatheta.org and choose Find a Chapter under the About Our Chapters tab. Several search options are available.

If there isn't an alumnae group near you, you can learn more about staying connected with the Fraternity by sending a email to aluminfo@kappaalphatheta.org.

Being a part of Kappa Alpha Theta starts in college, but it doesn't end there.

The good friends, the laughter, the loyalty—everything that makes Theta the wonderful experience it is—that's for a lifetime.
